LAB 2

Simulate in a language chosen freely the functioning of a finite state automaton described by a regular language. The finite state machine may be an example from the textbook. The simulation will specify all the transitions starting from the initial state and arriving to the accept state.